NGAERE HAILES

Apologies in advance for omissions and mistakes. If you are able to assist in correcting mistakes, adding missing information or hints on a better lay out please contact: Russell Hailes, 22 Haast Close, LOWER HUTT

Issue 2 26 October 1993

If you are able to supply information, what I would like is :

1. Full Name
2. Known(nick) Name
3. Birth Date and Location
4. Present Location (where you live)
or Date & Location of Death
5. Same for the marriage partner and Children
6. Where and when Married

And anything else you may want to say about the person/s, family stories or Family History (copies of photos or anything else of interest) which may be included in a "Family History Book" at some further stage.

WALTER MARY HAILES & FRANCES ANN WARD

Walter and Frances arrived in New Zealand from Staffordshire aboard the "Edward Thornhill", A 520 ton barque under Captain Reynold which left from London and made the trip in 120 days arriving in Nelson on 2 October 1862. On board with them were their six children, Felix, Walter, Edward, Joseph Mary and Winifred, Walters younger brother George, and George's three surviving children, Walter's niece Helen Giles and two Ward cousins.

After spending two years the Wairau in Marlborough the family moved to Kaikoura where Walter farmed and contracted. He was engaged in road making for the Provincial Government with his sons and was paid for the labour in land.

SECTION 6

GEORGE JAMES HAILES & LUCY JULIANA PENDRELL

Lucy died on 9 July 1861 after bearing eleven children, only 3 of these survived, which possibly is part of the reason George packed up and came to New Zealand with his brother Walter Mary and niece Helen Giles, presumably to assist in looking after the children. Also on board were some Ward relations.

Lucy was buried at Saint Mary's Church, Brewood, very close to where they lived at "Strangleford Birch". Kiddemore Green, Staffordshire, England. According to letters, in 1848 Lucy lived at Stafford Road, Wolverhampton. The Pendrell's were a devout Roman Catholic family, Lucy's sister became Prioress of Saint Joseph's Carmelite Order, Valognes, France in 1846 and was still there in 1860 when she last wrote to Lucy.

The Pendrell's were descended from the Pendrell family who sheltered and led part way to safety, Charles II after he was defeated at the Battle of Worcester in 1651. George and John Pendrell lived at "White Ladies", a manor house built in the half timbered style erected besides the ruins of a monastery. It was built in the form of a quadrangle, and enclosed by a wall in which an old gabled gate house was set. The Pendrell's were retainers of the Giffard family, a landed catholic family who owned Chillington Hall and supported Charles II. Persecuted priests often used their house for hiding. Francis Yates was married to Elizabeth Pendrell and he led Charles to "White Ladies". Charles hoped to cross the boarder into Wales at Madeley and was led by Richard Pendrell to his home, "Hobbal Grange" where he cut his hair and dressed him in yokel clothes, belonging to his brother, Humphrey. Humphrey, a miller, being as tall as the King. Richard's mother was living at "Hobbal Grange" with Richard, his wife, and Nan their daughter. After travelling nine miles to Madeley with Richard it was found that escape across the boarder was impossible with all bridges and fords well policed by Cromwell's men. So Charles was led back to Boscobel House, only one mile from "White Ladies", home of William and Joan Pendrell. Boscobel House was a Hunting Lodge belonging to the Giffard's and had two hiding places, one behind a wall panel that led down a secret stairway in the chimney straight into the forest, and one a "priests hole" under the floor of the cheese store at the top of the house. Charles spent some time in each place plus the legendary Oak tree with Cromwell's soldiers searching the woods under him at one time. He was eventually led by John Pendrell to Mosely Hall near Wolverhampton, the home of Whitgreave, also a sympathetic to the Catholic cause.

When Charles was restored to the throne in 1660 he granted the Pendrell's an Annuity "forever". William and Richard each received £100, Humphrey, John and George received 100 marks and Elizabeth Yates, daughter of old William Pendrell, received £50. Her husband had been killed by Cromwell. Richard Pendrell died 8 February 1672 leaving four sons and four daughters. He was buried at Saint Giles in the field and his tomb was restored and beautified by George II in 1739.

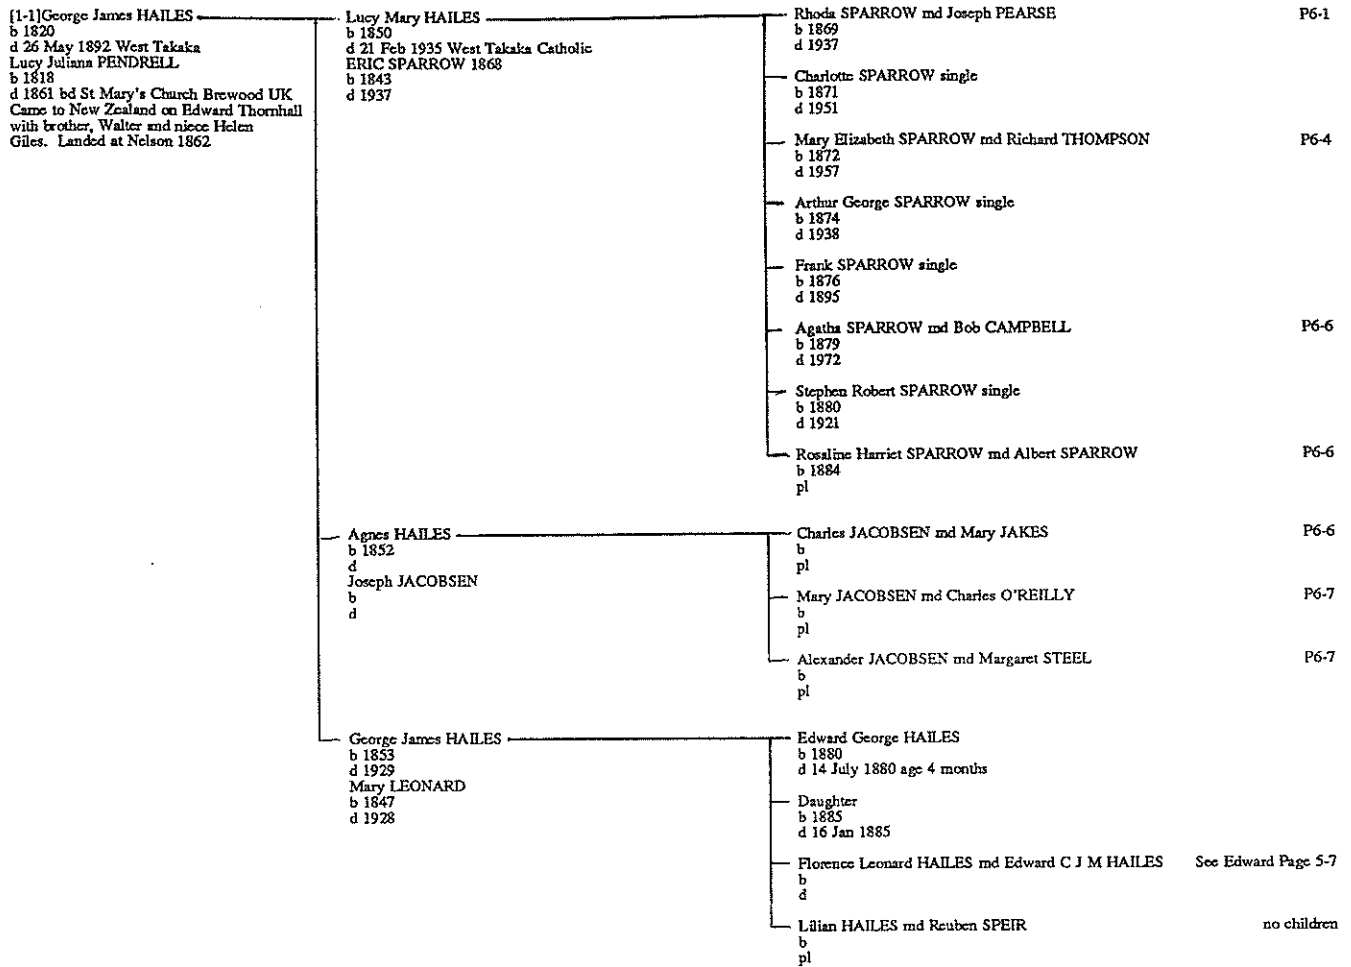

George Hailes sailed to New Zealand with his three surviving children, Lucy, Agnes and George, arriving in Nelson 2 October 1862 on the "Edward Thornhill". They settled in Upper Takaka and called their property "Waitui Park". Descendants of his son, George and Mary Leonard, still farm the area.
